GALLERY AALDERING: EST. 1975

Gallery Aaldering has been a family-owned business since 1975. Founder Nico Aaldering and his son Nick are responsible for the day-to-day operations and strategic management. Since 1987, the company has been based in Brummen, originally located at the site that now houses our second workshop and detailing facility.

THE MOVE TO BRUMMEN

Nico at the workshop in 1987

Nico started the business with just three employees, several of whom have been with the company for over 30 years. The business quickly grew, earning a strong reputation based on quality and expertise. In the 1990s, expansion became inevitable. By the end of 2000, Gallery Aaldering relocated to its current premises, where a stunning, classically styled building was constructed—designed to complement the historic villa on the property. The new building stands where the villa's orchard once was.

THE SECOND GENERATION

During this period, Nick joined the company after completing his studies and gaining experience at various automotive firms. With decades of experience from Nico and Nick's fresh ideas and forward-thinking vision, Gallery Aaldering entered a new phase of growth. The collection became more diverse, with a clear shift toward the high-end segment. Today, Gallery Aaldering is one of the largest classic car dealerships in Europe, employing over 25 people. Spread across four floors, the showroom features approximately 350 classic cars.

DRIVEN BY PASSION

As a family-run business, Gallery Aaldering is steeped in history and tradition—but the future is just as important. At the heart of it all lies a deep-rooted passion for classic automobiles. That passion is part of our DNA and forms the very identity of our company.
